

Annex C: Information and disclaimers

Accepting a booking

When accepting a booking for a performance, demonstration or instruction organised by another party the IWMM contact will make clear, preferably in writing, that the responsibility for meeting the requirements of the Child Protection Act rests with the hirer. A suitable form of words (possibly as a footnote to our letter head) would be:

In agreeing to appear, IWMM does not accept a transfer of the responsibilities which are laid on event organisers under the Child Protection Act.

Invitations to IWMM events

When inviting sides etc to IWMM ceilidhs, instructionals etc the IWMM contact will make clear, preferably in writing, that the responsibility for meeting the requirements of the Child Protection Act regarding supervision of children will rest with the side of which the child is a member. A suitable form of words (possibly as a footnote to our letter head) would be:

If your group includes members who fall under the Child Protection Act then their supervision is the responsibility of your group and not of the IWMM
